¶ The declaracion of the shadowe & partes of the horse rod or staffe, wherby is knowen al times of the day and also the highte of castels, towres, trees, and steples, and the length of euery man by their shadowes when the sonne shyneth.

MAke your horse rodde or staffe what length ye wyll, and deuyde it into euen syxe partes, the which are called shadowes then set your staffe vpon a plaine groūde as streyght vpryght as ye can when the sonne shyneth, and marke the ende of the shadowe of your staffe, then measure the length of the shadowe with your staffe, & if the shadowe be euē the staffe length thē it is syxe in shadowes, bycause the staffe is deuided in syxe euen partes, and if it be twyse in length, it is twelue in shadowes, and thryse in length is eyghtene, and foure tymes in length is foure and twenty in shadowes, &c. Furthermore if it be somewhat more or lesse then euen shadowes, that more or lesse are called partes, of the whiche threescore are conteined in one shadow, and when ye haue the nombre of youre shadowes and partes by your staffe, then entre the table of your boke and seke for the same moneth and daye that ye wolde knowe the houre or heyghte of any thynge, and agaynste the same daye euen betwyxe the. ii. lynes in some of the rules, ye shall fynde the nombres both of the shadowes and partes of your staffe, then direct in the hight of the table ye shal find the proper houre of the daye eyther before noone or after noone. Example.

¶ In Marche the. xiii. daye, ye set your staffe and fyndethe the shadowe thereof ons your staffe lengthe and a halfe, and xv. partes, the which is in numbre. ix. shadowes and a quarter of one shadowe in partes, the whych is. xv. Then entre the table table of Marche, and agaynſte the thir-tene daye in the fyrſte rule ye ſhall fynde the nombre of nine ſhadowes and fiftene partes, then loke directe to the hygheſt lyne and ye ſhall fynde the nombre of ten of the clocke before noone, and if it be at after noone, then the nexte nombre be-neth is three, the whiche ſygnyfyeth thre of the clocke at after noone, and thus vn-derſtande of all howres and tymes in e-uery moneth and daye when the ſonne ſhyneth.

¶ To knowe the heyght of any thyng by the ſhadowe.

MArke in what monethes and daies ỹ ſhadowes are lyke in nombre, for then the ſhadowe of your ſtaffe is iuſte the length therof or of any toure caſtell, tree, or ſteple, ſauynge the partes, the whiche ye muſt conſyder therefore to be in one ſhadowe, that is no great ſenſy-bilitie, also. xii. shadowes in nombre is twise your staffe length and so it is double in shadowes to the heyghte of any towre, tree, or steple, and if it be eyghtene, it is thrise in shadow to the heyght so that the shodoweis three tymes more then the heyght, Example.

¶In marche from the. xviii. daye to the xxix. the shadowe is nere by the iust lēgth and heyght of euery thynge at the houre of noone. In July from the. ii. daye to the. xx. the shadowe of any thyng is double to the length or hyght at. vii. of the clock before noone and at. v. after noone In Februaary from the fyftene day to the xvii. day the shadoe is trible to the length or highte of any thynge at the houres of ix. before noone & iii. after noone, & if ye wyl be more precise, marke your partes and your odde shadowes, and ye may gather the lengthes and hightes in euerye daye and houre and these rewles are perpetuall for Englande.

IN the beginning of this yere shalbe many colde rewmes, poses, and distilations from the head that shal cause much payne both in the head, and in the throte tethe, brest and longes, and shall renew dropses & goutes, & specially gret paine to splenytike men & women, in theyr sydes, and also more vement in Marche, then anye other tyme in somer, ye shall haue diuerse kindes of Feuers, as pure tercians in sum people, and mixte in other sum, & continuall Feuers, both intrauasa et extra, with certayne kyndes of quotidians, according to the age, complexion, and site of dyuers kyndes of people, also I feare the contagious inuasion of sum pestilenticall feuer this yere. Wherfore as euery man desireth to know these sikneses, tofore hande that it maye be a warninge of a daunger to come to the bodye, euen so let it be a mo-nycyon and warnynge of the scourge of God: that we maye prouide therefore ioyntly togither, both for helthe of soule and bodye, the onely and very medycyne therof, is to kepe the commaũdementes and ordinaunces of god, and the catholike Churche, Extra quã non est salus, as saynt Augustine sayeth.
